

Jane Hurst is a regular guest lecturer on the Diploma in Youth and Community and the BA (Hons) Childhood, Youth and Society programmes at the University of Chichester.

Her knowledge of contemporary issues relating to work with young people is very good and she relates this well to the history and origins of work in this field so that her lectures are soundly grounded both in a historical context but also in her current work in the field.

She works in a participatory manner, sharing her expertise with students and engaging with them constructively. Her sessions are always well evaluated by students.

In addition she is always efficient and courteous in all her contacts with us and we are pleased to continue to work with her.

Dr Heather Clark
Reader